IMPORTANT INFORMATION

Please note due to airline restrictions and limitations this quotation provided can only be used for estimated purposes and is subject to change once booked dependent on airline availability. All additional costs associated to the booking will be the responsibility of the client/agent.

Pricing

Pricing may change due to third-party adjustments, such as increases in government fees or airline costs. Any increases during your pet's relocation process will be the client's responsibility. Jetpets will notify you and provide an updated invoice if this occurs.

Vet Work Fees

Any fees for mandatory vet work is at the discretion of your vet and will need to be paid to them directly. Examples of some of the vet appointments not included:

- ID Verification process - Must be before the Rabies test to be valid
- Initial rabies vet work (Vaccination & Test) - Needs to commence at least 8 months before expected travel date
- Annual Vaccinations
- 1-3 mandatory vet appointments (Pending on medical history, country of origin etc) within the two months prior to departure to meet AU Requirements.
- Microchipping

Vet Work

Jetpets is not responsible for the completion or accuracy of veterinary procedures. This remains the responsibility of your veterinarian, who must hold the appropriate qualifications and training to ensure all work is carried out correctly, in line with the manufacturer's guidelines for the products used, your origin country's requirements, and the requirements outlined by the Australian Department of Agriculture.

It is the client's responsibility to ensure that their chosen veterinarian is government-approved and authorised to provide accurate veterinary work for export purposes. We also recommend asking your vet to carefully confirm that the correct dosages, treatments, and tests have been administered, and that the coverage period of all treatments will remain valid through to your pet's departure.

Document compliance reviews are not included in your Jetpets quote. Our consultants are not responsible for ensuring that all required information is documented for import/export compliance purposes. While we will always do our best to flag any issues and notify you if amendments are needed, a formal compliance review is not part of our quoted service.

Microchip Verification

Your vet must scan your pet's microchip at each appointment and make sure the number matches what's written on the documents. If the numbers don't match, or the chip is unable to be scanned, the vet must tell you or contact your Jetpets consultant to double-check the correct details across all documentation to ensure it matches the scan.

As we are not physically with your pet before travel, we can't confirm that the microchip number on the documents matches the chip in your pet and discrepancy could lead to delays or starting over.

Brachycephalic (Short-Nosed) Breeds

Brachycephalic breeds (full or mixed) may face airline restrictions that impact travel routes and schedules. Failure to disclose this may result in cancelled travel plans, with all incurred costs and delays being the client's responsibility. If unsure, clients should inform their Jetpets consultant promptly.

Pets Aged 12 Years and Over

Pets aged 12 and over require a 'fit to fly' certificate from a vet. Additional medical information may be requested to ensure the pet is healthy for travel. Jetpets prioritizes pet safety and reserves the right to decline transport if it's deemed unsafe or not in the pet's best interest.

Weather Policy AU Domestic Travel

If temperatures exceed 35°C (or 29°C for brachycephalic breeds), pets cannot fly for welfare reasons. They will be boarded overnight and rescheduled for an early morning flight, weather and flight availability permitting. Boarding fees will apply.
